This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PROSPECTUS

A SECOND SERIES of this Catalogue uniform with the First Series (2 Volumes 1862) has now been commenced, and a specimen part is sent herewith.

All the Books described are in stock, and our object is firstly to catalogue them for sale, and secondly by carefully giving the titles in full with accurate collations and occasional descriptive, historical, geographical, and biographical notes, to form at the same time a useful bibliographical work of reference.

Owing to the expense and labour attending the publication of such a catalogue, we feel we cannot afford to distribute the work gratuitously, and Librarians and Collectors are therefore invited to aid us in our work by becoming subscribers.

It is estimated that the full titles and collations of the books now in stock, some ten or twelve thousand, will fill about eight volumes. The work will be pushed on as rapidly as circumstances will permit, and it is hoped sufficient encouragement will be given to warrant the expense and labour of carrying it on to the end without curtailment.

Each volume will contain about 400 pages and will be supplied either in paper covered parts of from 64 to 96 pages each, or in cloth bound volumes as subscribers may elect. The parts will be issued to subscribers as fast as ready at the rate of 10*s* 6*d* or $2.50 per volume post free, payable a volume in advance; or the bound volumes may be had at the same rate of 10*s* 6*d* or $2.50 payable on the completion of each volume. No gratuitous copies whatsoever can be supplied, but Librarians or others who will send us five subscribers shall have a sixth copy free, and all subscribers purchasing to an amount exceeding £5 from any one volume of the Catalogue, will on their request be allowed the subscription price of that volume.

A few copies of the First Series, two volumes 1862, are still on hand, price 30*s* bound in cloth, but subscribers to the New Series can have the option of taking them at the same subscription price of 21*s* or $5 post free.

An order form for subscription is annexed.

INTRODUCTION

THE ALPHABET IS A democratic Institution wherein are assigned rooms appropriate for occupants of every degree with acknowledged rights and rank no one ever dreams of questioning. There are no favorites, no upper ten and no lower orders. Here only, in all the wide world, high and low, rich and poor, early and late, stand shoulder to shoulder without loss of dignity or gain of humility. All dwell together on the high-level of perfect freedom and equality. There is never a scramble for places, worldly honors or precedence. Though limited to xxvi heads of families, their signatures are practically a round-robin with no limit to the increase or diminution of subscribers. Hence a complete record of today is never a perfect one for tomorrow.

In like manner Alphabetical Bibliography is a Democracy, a kind of Asylum for authors and books, where all names are recorded on the round-robin principle under certain acknowledged rules which give to none leadership or undue prominence.

Of making books, we are told, there is no end; and therefore it follows that a Catalogue of them is never complete. Indeed the Census of our books, by the concensus of mankind, is based on the immutable laws of the alphabet, not to be gainsaid.

The question of position and ready reference being settled, the difficulty of perfect registration arises. What is bibliography? and what is perfect cataloguing? The painter who omits an eye or a nose of an author is at once judged to have produced a defective portrait, but the cataloguer who abridges the title or face of a book and thereby produces a defective likeness, too often escapes judgment on the ground that perfect accuracy in this art is unattainable or unnecessary. We own to having once, a long time ago, had a pride of accuracy in cataloguing, but we now confess that our experience during the past half century has well nigh taken it out of us. We have never seen a perfect Catalogue. No department or class of literature is full, and no descriptions of the books in them are without imperfections. Still, we have in our day done our share of cataloguing, and are not yet disposed to go to the wall, without another trial, though some who criticise our labors 'woulde seeme to knowe so much as no men more.' We are still sustained by a lingering pride not to be outdone in American Bibliography by others, notwithstanding our faults in other departments, believing that wholesome vanity in our new method is better than the ordinary dulness of the old system of cataloguing by our predecessors and contemporaries.

With these shortcomings and discouragements confessed, and an approval of our method assumed, we venture to ask the patient public, at its own expense, to indulge us in one more attempt to gratify our surviving love of accuracy and fulness in scientific bibliography, in this department, but without any pretensions to a complete registration of all the books relating to America. Our present collection of books relating to the history and literature of North and South America, accumulated during the last forty years while assisting in the formation of several of the largest and best libraries of this kind on both sides the Atlantic, will be found particularly rich in historical and political works recorded here for the first time as Americana. To such in many instances we have appended brief notes.

In 1857 volumes I & II of our 'Nuggets' were printed, though not published until 1862, comprising 805 pages and describing 2934 works. Encouraged by the appreciation still accorded to that Catalogue we now propose to continue it in a similar and uniform style, but with some important improvements, in a new Alphabet of about twelve thousand titles, numbering the whole on to about 15000, in a New Series of eight volumes more, vols I to VIII, or with the old series vols III to X. The improvements will consist chiefly in historical, geographical and bibliographical notes, based on our experience and studies.

Books now in stock but already fully recorded in the First Series are here entered briefly with references to the N^os^ of the full titles, in some cases with corrected or varying collations and additional Notes. As to prices we feel we are within the present market value. It is interesting however to compare these current prices with those in the First Series a quarter of a century ago.

This new venture of eight volumes is to be taken as a sale Catalogue of our present stock in trade, arranged in a single alphabet, and elevated into Bibliography by full titles, elaborate accurate collations, descriptions, careful printing and abundant annotations. No books not actually in stock and for sale will be included but the titles of those sold during the progress of the cataloguing and printing will remain for bibliographical purposes. A Note of those sold will accompany each part. These 'Nuggets' therefore are not a selection of works relating to America but rather a collection of them actually in hand for sale at the net price given to each. As the making of a Catalogue of this kind consumes much time, and the printing of it much money, neither of which can we well afford to contribute to a posterity who has done so little for us; and as the Catalogue will have answered its immediate ends when the books described are sold and dispersed, we propose to ask our disinterested friends who desire to possess it to be so good as to subscribe for it and so help us through a great work that is issued rather for the benefit of others than ourselves. If then collectors, librarians and others interested in American bibliography are disposed to encourage a luxury of this kind, of which the following pages are a sample, they are offered the opportunity of doing so on the terms mentioned in the accompanying Prospectus, being assured that our days of manufacturing bibliography gratis are passed.

A word as to the condition and binding of our books. All works are to be considered to be in good condition and perfect unless otherwise stated. The larger proportion of them have been recently appropriately and tastefully bound, as a general rule somewhat according to their value, at a cost from a shilling to ten pounds a volume. We have not studied any great variety or preciseness in the description of our cheap bindings, the words 'hal morocco' being by custom an indefinite description. A pamphlet priced at four or five shillings, and described as in 'half morocco uncut' is probably bound in half imitation morocco, with full lettering all along the back, sufficiently good for any public or most private libraries. No uncut book has been trimmed or cut down. Hence if desired it may be rebound at any time in a more costly manner. Our extra bindings in morocco or calf are generally the best that can be done, and exhibit a very great variety of styles and patterns.

BIBLIOTHECA AMERICANA

LA AUGUSTA ASAMBLEA constituyente del Imperio Mexicano. Incitativa de un Liberal [Signed V . . . . S] Mexico 1822. Segundo de la Independencia. Imprenta, contraria al despotismo, de D. J. M. Benavente y Sócios. 16 pp. signed, half mor. uncut 4° (7*s* 6*d* 2935)

This document, addressed to the Constituent Assembly of the Mexican Empire, appeals chiefly to the Nation. It cautions them against the numberless wild schemes, daily propagated by ingenious political inventors, for promoting their happiness, and exhorts the people to simply uphold that august Assembly in their patriotic endeavours to consolidate the cause of liberty and concord in the Empire. Finally, it beseeches Iturbide and Guerrero, 'the first heroes of Mexican Independence,' not to forsake them in their struggle for liberty and union.

LA NACION Mexicana. [Signed J. M. C.] Mexico: 1822. Imprenta de D. J. M. Benavente y Sócios. 8 pages half morocco uncut 4° (5*s* 6*d* 2936)

A call, in form of a Petition, on the Mexican Nation (addressed throughout as "Your Majesty") to shake off the yoke of Ferdinand VII and the tyranny of the Spaniards, the irreconcilable enemies of Mexican Independence. The Mexicans having by the Treaty of Iguala, reserved to themselves the right of choosing their form of government, in case the Cortes should not send them an Emperor as covenanted by the Treaty of Cordova, and Spain having failed to do so, the time has now come for the Mexicans to break for ever the chains of their slavery, the day of true liberty. "What pledges of love had Ferdinand VII ever given the Mexican Nation, the man who has bestowed titles, pensions and bishoprics on their oppressors, laid waste their fields, dishonoured their dead, killed their liberators, plundered their churches, etc. etc. ?" The contract had been broken by their implacable enemy, Ferdinand VII, and become nil and void. Signed J. M. C.

A QUIEN le pese, que roa el hueso, o sea Diálogo entre un senador y un militar. Mexico: 1826. Imprenta a cargo de Martin Rivera.
20 pages half morocco uncut 4° (5*s* 6*d* 2937)
A Dialogue between a Military Man and a Senator about promotion in the Mexican Army and the appointment of two Colonels whom the Senator considers unduly promoted over the heads of more than twenty more deserving officers, and whose superior merits and the Senator's attack on the Government, they discuss.

A QUIEN me entiende. [Dated at end Mexico July 31. 1826, and signed, Uno de tantos.] Mexico: 1826. Imprenta à cargo de Martin Rivera. 4 pages half morocco uncut 4° (4*s* 6*d* 2938)
A reply to several prints, in which political partizans have expounded their opinions on the affairs of the Mexican Nation.

A UN DIA de gusto, otro de susto México: 1826. Oficina del C. Juan Cabrera.
4 pages half morocco uncut 4° (4*s* 6*d* 2939)
Christianity, the only true religion and the only source of human happiness, is here treated not dogmatically but from a rationalistic standpoint.

A VER si Pegaba; Pero no Pogó. Porque ya dá basca Gobierno Español. [Signed Tirso Tarugo.] Mexico: 1822. Oficina de D. José Maria Ramos Palomera.
4 pages half morocco uncut 4° (4*s* 6*d* 2940)
A satirical, defiant letter, addressed to 'Señor Don N.' who had announced that he had received a communication from Cadiz, dated 11th June (1822 ?), informing him that the Spanish Government had recognised the Independence of the Mexicans, and were going to send Plenipotentiaries from Madrid, commissioned to make treaties which will be advantageous to Mexico and to Spain. The writer of the pamphlet asks: "Will the treaties be made in good faith, or after the fashion of the Spanish Government? Can anything be advantageous to Mexico, without being disadvantageous to Spain? What do we care for the approval or opposition of Spain, our old stepmother? Who will answer for her not deceiving us again with her trickery and astuteness?"

AARON [A Negro Slave]. The Light and the Truth of Slavery. Aaron's History. Printed for Aaron at Worcester, Mass. [n d] Woodcut portrait on title, and 3 other cuts in text. 40 pp. half mor. uncut 8° (4*s* 6*d* 2941)

ABBEVILLE (Claude d'). Histoire/ de la Mission/ des Peres Capvcins/ en l'Isle de Maragnan et/ terres circonuoiſines/ etc. Paris 1614. (Full title see N° 1) Close cut copy wanting six leaves, folios 330-335, half calf extra 8° (2*l* 12*s* 6*d* 2942)

Eight preliminary leaves, viz. 1, Engraved Title, reverse blank, 2-4 'A La Reyne' 6 pp, 5 'Permission et Approbation' 2 pp, 6 'Privilege' 2 pp, 7-8 'Table des Chapitres' 4 pp; Preface 12 leaves, foliod 1-12; text foliod 13 to (395), followed by 'Table des Choses' 27 pages not numbered, commencing on the verso of folio (395) and printed in single measure the full width of the page. In the numeration folio 32 is printed 33, 179 is 579, and the 395th leaf is not numbered. Besides the engraved title, there are seven full page copperplate portraits, &c. on the verso of folios 89, 347, 353, 358, 361, 363 and 364, that on the verso of folio 89 being marked 'L. Gualtier incidit.'

ABBEVILLE (CLAUDE D'). Histoire/ de la Mission/ des Peres Capvcins/ en l'Isle de Maragnan et/ terres circonuoifines/ etc. Paris: 1614. (Full title see N° 1)
Fine copy in red morocco extra 8° (9*l* 9*s* 2943)

Another edition, differing throughout. Eight preliminary leaves as in the foregoing. Preface 12 leaves, foliod 1-12, text foliod 13-395 and 'Table des Choses,' 35 unnumbered leaves printed in double columns, commencing on the verso of folio 395.

With the exception of the 'Table des Choses' the collations of the two editions are identical. The engraved title is the same in both, but the set up of the types entirely different throughout, although as far as the end of the text on folio 395, almost page for page and line for line. No difference is discernible in the plates, all the seven appearing in the same positions as in the foregoing edition, although in L. Maissonneuve's Bibliotheca Americana, 1878, a copy is described as having only five plates. In the text the following errors occur in the numeration which will serve to distinguish the two editions: Folio 173 is printed 174, 250 is 248, 253 is 241, 277 is 265, 309 is 351, 342 is 142, 345 is 245, 356 is 256, 362 is 392, 375 is 344, and folio 395 is properly numbered. It has not yet been determined which is the earlier edition.

The R. P. Claude d'Abbeville, whose family name was Silvère, together with three other Capucin Fathers, Yves d'Evreux, Arsène de Paris and Ambroise d'Amiens, accompanied the expedition commanded by Sieurs De Rasilly and De La Ravardiere to Brazil in 1612, where France was endeavouring to found a settlement. The first news of the Mission is contained in a tract of 16 pp. published at Lyons in 1613, with the following title and collation taken from Maissonneuve's Bibliotheca Americana, 1867:

"L'arrivee des Peres Capvcins en l'Inde Nouuelle, appellee Maraguon, Auec la reception que leur ont faict les Sauuages de ce pays, et la conuersion d'iceux à nostre Saincte Foy. Declaree par vne lettre que le R. P. Clavde D'Abbeville predicateur capucin enuoyé à Frere Martial, pareillement capucin, et à M. Foullon ses freres. A Lyon, par Gvichard Pailly, 1613." 16 pages 8°. The letter of P. Claude d'Abbeville occupies the first 11 pages, and is dated 'En haste De Maraguon, au Bresil ce 20. iour d'Aoust 1612.' Pages 12-15 contain a 'Sommaire relation de quelques autres choses plus particulieres qui ont este dictes de bouche aux frères capucins par Monsieur de Manoir'; pp. 15-16 'Lettres qve les peres Capucins ont escrit à Monsieur Fermanet de Rouen,' signed 'Frere Claude d'Abbeville, Frere Arsene de Paris' and dated 'De l'isle de Maraguon ce 20 Aoust, 1612.'

This tract was translated into German, and printed the same year at Augsburg. The following is the title and collation taken from the copy in the British Museum:—

Die Ankunfft/ der Vätter Capuciner Or-/ dens, in die newe Indien/ Maragnon genannt./ Auch wie ſie von den wilden/ Leuten in ſelbigen Landen empfan-/ gen worden, ſampt ihrer Bekehrung/ zu vnſerm H. Francisci/ Ordens Liebhaber vberſetzt./ Gedruckt zu Augſpurg, Durch Chryſoſto-/ mum Dabertshoſer, im Jahr,/ 1613./ Six leaves 4°. Title in type metal border, reverse blank; Claude d'Abbeville's Letter, pp. 1-5; 'Summariſcher Bericht' &c. pp. 6-9; 'Schreiben, ſo die Vätter Capuciner an/ Herrn Fermanet von Roan gethon.' signed 'Bruder Claudius von Abbeuille, vnd Bruder Arſenius von Pariſs.' pp. 9-10.

In 1615 was published a continuation of P. Claude's narrative, with the following title and collation, taken from the sale catalogue of the library of Dr. J. Court, Paris, May 1884, which describes an imperfect copy:—

Svite de/ l'Histoire/ des Choses plvs/ Merorables aduenuës en Maragnan, ès/ annees 1613 et/ 1614./ Second traité./ A Paris./ De l'Imprimerie de François Huby, ruë Sainct/ Jacques à la Bible d'Or, et en sa boutique/ au Palais, en la galerie des/ prisonniers./ M.C.D.XV. (1615). Collation: Title, Dedication 'Au Roy,' signed Francois de Rasilli, commencing "Voicy ce que j'ay peu par subtils moyens recouurir du liure du R. P. Yues d'Eureux supprimé par fraude et impieté, moyennant certaine somme de deniers, entre les mains de François Huby, Imprimeur, Que i'offre maintenant à V. M. deux ans et demy apres sa premiere naissance aussitot estouffee qu'elle auoit veu le iour," 2 ll., Dedication of P. Ives d'Evreux au Roy 4 ll., Advertissement au lecteur 1 leaf, Preface (2 ll. only remaining), Text 384 leaves numbered 364 (folios 361-384 being numbered 341-364). Folio 242 is a title to the second part of the volume. Two plates on copper engraved by Firens represent "Vrais portraicts des sauuagie de lisle de Maragnon appellez Topinambous amenez au Roy de France par le Sr. de Rasilly en 1613."

This imperfect copy, together with a copy of Claude d'Abbeville's 'Histoire,' produced the high price of 1600 francs. The only other recorded copy is in the Bibliothèque Impériale, Paris. Mr Ferdinand Denis, the learned 'Conservateur de la Bibliothèque Sainte-Geneviève,' reprinted at Paris in 1864 the work of P. Yves d'Evreux, taken from the then unique copy in the Bibl. Imp. The title is:—

"Voyage dans le Nord du Brésil, fait durant les années 1611 et 1614. Publié d'après l'exemplaire unique conservé à la Biblioth. Imp. de Paris. Avec une introduction et des notes par Ferd. Denis. Leipsig et Paris," &c. 1864. x, xlvi and 456 pp. 8°.

This extraordinary document is signed at the end by HENRY MARSH, Author. He first laid his scheme before the public in 1716, after having spent some time in the country, 'at great expense of money and time.' Four years later he provided an office with Herman Moll's large map, and issued this prospectus for forming a company with a capital of £2,000,000, 'for a Company to form a Settlement on one of theſe Navigable Rivers of Acadia,' for carrying on an extensive trade in fish, and the various commodities of the country to be exported to Europe, and to carry on trade with the various colonies of New England. Mr Marsh enters largely into detail, exhibiting a scheme of some attractions, based on his geographical information and the natural resources of America. But his financial arrangements were his weak points. 'As New Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Connecticut and Rhode Island, did circulate Paper Money in 1702, from an eighteen penny Bill to a £5. Bill,' he proposed to do the same, and issue 'Bills of Settlement to the extent of £500,000,' "these Paper Bills to be renewed as often as worn out." The settlement was not established.

This volume surpasses all others for valuable historical, geographical and bibliographical information respecting Nova Scotia or Acadia and part of Canada. The two maps on the same scale show clearly what is claimed by both parties, French and English. They cover the whole territory south of the Gulf of St Lawrence, east of Lake Champlain, and north of Massachusetts, and include all the disputed tracts and grants of the English and French governments. The French map shows the English limits claimed in 1750 and 1751; limits of Acadia and Port Royal by the Treaty of Utrecht; limits of Nova Scotia as granted to Sir Wm. Alexander, 1621; Cromwell's grant to La Tour, Crown and Temple in 1656; the country restored to France by the Treaty of Breda; the government of Denys in 1654, Charnesay's in 1638, and La Tour's in 1638. The English map delineates Nova Scotia as claimed by the English by the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713; as granted to Sir Wm. Alexander, 1621; according to Champlain, 1603-1629; with the country west to the Penobscot; Acadia as granted by Louis XIII and XIV, 1632-1710; enlarged to the Kennebeck by further grant to Stirling, 1635; Acadia proper according to the tripartite division named by Charlevoix; Charnesay's and La Tour's governments in 1638; Cromwell's grant to La Tour, Crown, and Temple in 1656; Acadia claimed by France at the Treaty of Breda, 1667; Norembega, between the Penobscot and Kennebeck; and the Etechemin's coast according to Champlain and Denys. The text well illustrates and explains these two maps. This copy is quite perfect, but Sheet I (pp. 57-64) is missing in most copies, and is generally supplied by a duplicate of some other sheet. An imperfect copy can be supplied, price 10*s* 6*d*. For 'Memoires' and 'Memorials' see Nos 1884, 1891 & 1892.

This is an imaginary conversation, carried on by five persons, each representing different 'prevailing opinions concerning the Occurrences in America.' They are named Mr Leicester, Mr Cornish, Mr Fergus, Mr Conner, and Mr Penn. The book by Mr Rich has been attributed to Joshua Steele, but this is probably an error. There is some reason to think that Mr Penn is intended to represent Dr Franklin, but it manifestly fell short of the sentiments of the old philosopher and diplomat.

A large number of the items of these accounts have relation to the army or administration in America. "July 4th 1780. To Jn° Wentworth, Esq, being the Balance of his Account as Govr of New Hampshire, from 13th June 1775 to 25th March 1777. £781. 6. 4." Many payments for Spanish and Portuguese coins remitted to New York, Georgia, East Florida, etc., for service, stores, provisions, etc., "for Clothing sent to the Provincial Troops of North America £9,733. 6. 2. Ditto for service £9,282. 4. 8." Warrant Feb. 8, 1780 "To Capt Edwd Barron, being his Majesty's Bounty for the Loss of the Use of his Leg, in the Action at Bunker's Hill, 17th June 1775, £90. 8. 4." "Warrant, March 1, 1780, for Clothing of the 26th Regt taken by the Rebels in Canada A° 1775 £969. 13—" "and May 1 1780 for Presents to the Indians in Canada £13,024. 10. 6." "To D° for Presents to the Indians in the South District of America £8,372. 1. 6.—D° in West Florida £7,225. 5. 11." Paid warrant 22d March, 1780 "To Jn° Fenton, Esqr for 184 Days Pay, as Captain and Commander of William and Mary Fort, in New Hampshire, to the 5th Janr 1780 £184," and Warrant paid, April 7, 1780, "To Sir Wm Howe for his Pay as Commander in Chief in North America, from 24th May 1778 to 2d July following, being the Day of his landing in England £390"—warrant paid April 7, 1781, "To Major Genl Robt Skene, for Expenses of embarking ſundry Regts in North Britain, in the Spring of 1779 £186. 2. 8." So that Skene's Scotchmen who settled among the Green Mountain Boys, were, after all, emigrants 'encouraged' by the British Government. Hundreds of other items of similar interest to the American historian may be culled from these pages.

Acosta is justly counted one of the fathers of American history, the only one down to his time who has left us an anthropological and philosophical history of the New World. He describes minutely the inhabitants, their manners and customs, and at the same time gives a vivid account of the natural resources and productions of the various countries. Joseph de Acosta was born at Medina del Campo in 1539; was educated at Salamanca; became professor of theology at Ocana: joined the Jesuits, and at the age of 31 in 1571 went out to Peru, where in the Jesuit Missions he became the Second Provincial of his Order, residing mostly at Los Reyes or Lima. His signature is found attached to the licences of the first books printed in Peru by Ricardo at Los Reyes in 1584-1586. Having visited, as appears by his writings, Panama, Central America, Mexico, Cuba, St Domingo, and other places he returned to Spain in 1587, having been absent about seventeen years. At first he was occupied in an official visitation of his order in the provinces of Aragon and Andalucia, and subsequently visited Rome in behalf of the spiritual welfare of the Indians of the New World. He had already while in Peru written in Latin prior to 1584 two distinct works, the one in two books on the climate, temperature and inhabitants and their origin; and the other in six books entitled De Procuranda Indorum Salute. These two works, paged on, but with separate titles, were first printed at Salamanca in 1588 by Foquel, the latter at the expense of the Library of the Society of Jesus. The first title is dated 1589. This latter work, though sometimes catalogued as a separate publication, does not appear to have been printed separately. This circumstance has led bibliographers into many errors. The truth is that as a work of philosophical history the first three Latin editions of the De Natura are unimportant when compared with the original Spanish editions, and the several translations from the Spanish into Italian, Dutch, French, German, and English. The De Procuranda does not appear to have ever been translated out of the ecclesiastical Latin, and the five other books were never written by Acosta in Latin. He however at the time translated and somewhat altered, with an author's privilege, the first ten books from Latin into Spanish, adding books 3 and 4 on the Elements and Natural Mixtures, as minerals, plants, animals, etc.; and books five, six, and seven relative to what he could discover of the Indians themselves, their ceremonies, customs, government, and wars. These later books are mostly from personal observation, some materials being also compiled, but with a philosophic and skilful hand.

Acosta subsequently became rector of the old University of Salamanca and died in February, 1600. He was esteemed a writer of eminence, but is now chiefly known by his Natural and Moral History of the New World. This work at once achieved great popularity, having been translated into the chief languages of Europe and passed rapidly through many editions. The work is divided into seven Books, and each book into many chapters. The first four books are devoted to America generally and especially to Peru, while the last three books refer more particularly to Mexico. The original edition in Latin was published at Salamanca in 1589 in small 8o. Two other edition in Latin were printed, the one in Salamanca in 1595, and the other at Cologne in 1596. [See No 3000.]

The author himself as stated translated his work into Spanish, the original edition of which appeared at Seville in 1590 [See No 27], followed rapidly by other Spanish editions, the 2d at Barcelona in 1591, the 3d at Seville in 1591, the 4th and 5th at Madrid in 1608 [See No 30] and 1610, while the 6th and last edition, revised, with memoir of Acosta, came out at Madrid in 2 vols small 4o in 1792 [See No 3007]. The work was translated into French by Regnault, and editions appeared in 1597, 1598, 1600, [See No 3003], 1606, 1616, 1617, 1619, and 1621. A sole edition in Italian was published at Venice in 1596, [See No 28], and a translation into English by E. G. [Edward Grimston] was entered at Stationers' Hall by Edward Blunt, the 4th of January 1601, but was not published till 1604 [See Nos 29 and 3004]. A translation into Dutch was made by the celebrated traveller Linschoten and published in 1598 (though licensed as early as 1594). [See No 3002.] A second edition appeared in 4o in 1624, the title pages varying with the names of three different publishers. [See Nos 3005-6.] In German there were no less than five or six editions, and perhaps more than one translation, viz. at Cologne in 1598, 1599, and 1600: and at Ursel in 1605 and Frankfurt in 1617. Besides all these editions and translations the entire work appeared in German in De Bry's America, Part IX, as translated by Johann Humberger of Wetterave, from Linschoten's Dutch Version, and edited with some additional Dutch Voyages by Gothard Arthus of Dantzig. The preface of De Bry's German version is dated the 1st of April, 1601, and contains the whole work in the seven Books, chapter for chapter, filling pages 1 to 327. Acosta's name does not appear, but the German translator accredits the work to the Dutch translator Linschoten. It next appears in De Bry's Latin America, preface dated 23 March, 1602, Part IX, filling pages 1 to 362, without any name of author, translator or editor; simply appearing as if picarooned from some unknown source. Both of De Bry's versions however contain the whole seven books of Acosta divided into the same number of chapters as the original Spanish edition of the author. De Bry has been blamed for altering the work, but the fact is his Latin version of books 3 to 7 appears for the first time. He was driven to this because Acosta himself had left no Latin version of these five books. For the German version he was quite safe in following the honest translation from Linschoten. Of De Bry's plates the first four refer to Acosta's Peru, and plates 5 to 14 to his account of Mexico, all likewise picarooned from some source without naming the author or artist. With all these antecedents the work of Acosta is worthy of a well-edited and indexed edition in English, that the coming student of advanced historical research may have ACOSTA undefiled.

This Swedish Colony and Mission on the Delaware, planted in 1638, under Oxenstiern, wrested by Stuyvesant of Manhatten and annexed to New Nederland in 1655, and swallowed up by the English in 1664 together with the other Dutch possessions in America, was never really abandoned or forgotten by the parent State till 1791, when it had become permanently provided for and protected as part of the great republic of the United States. The best history of it is this by ACRELIUS, born in 1714, died 1800, who wrote first hand, having been provost over its three churches, and rector of the old Swedish church at Wilmington for seven years, 1749-1756. Besides his own collections and experience, he seems to have used judiciously all previous authors who had touched or written on the same subject, such as De Vries, Vander Donck, Rudman's MSS, Swedburg's Dissertatio and America Illuminata, Campanius, Hesselius, Björk, etc.

Indispensable for the history of tariffs and prices during the Commonwealth. The American historian will find many items of special interest. For instance we learn that 'Succades from the English Plantations' paid one shilling the pound while all others paid three. Whale-bone [much of it coming from New England] paid an excise of £50 a ton, and Brazil or 'Farnambuck' wood £1 a hundred weight. Brazeletto, or Jamaica wood, 14*s* a cwt. and cotton-wool of English Plantation fourpence per pound. 'Melasses or Rameales' one pound the cwt. Train Oyl of Newfound-land £6 the tun. Globes, small, £3 and large £6 the pair. etc. &c.

ADAMS (JOHN). History of the Dispute with America; from its origin in 1754. Written in the year 1774. By John Adams, Esq. London: J. Stockdale, MDCCLXXXIV. 89 pages and Stockdale's Catalogue 11 pages, half morocco 8° (10*s* 6*d* 3035)
This valuable and outspoken book is positively ascribed to John Adams. It was published by his friend and regular London publisher shortly before he went to London as the United States Minister near George III. This is strong evidence as to its authorship. The book however has been more recently ascribed to the authors of NOVANGLUS and MASSACHUSETTENSIS, that is, John Adams and Daniel Leonard. The aim of the author is to show the history of the various schemes of the 'Junto' in Boston and the Ministry in London to raise a revenue in America by authority of Parliament, 1764-1774. Among other statements, it is written on page 4 that Dr Franklin, being in Boston in 1754, Governor Shirley communicated to him the profound secret,—the great design of taxing the Colonies by Act of Parliament! Dr Franklin, 'to his lasting honour, sent the Governor an answer in writing, with the following remarks upon his scheme.' Then follows Franklin's Answer, filling nearly four pages, upon which this author says: 'Whether the Ministry at home, or the Junto here, were discouraged by those masterly remarks, or by any other cause, the project of taxing the Colonies was laid aside; Mr. Shirley was removed from his government, and Mr. Pownall was placed in his stead.' Pownall not long after, on the machinations of the Junto, composed of Hutchinson, Oliver and their kind, asked to be recalled, and Bernard was promoted to Boston, and became the head of the royal Junto. The real substance of the work now begins,—a history of the ten years' strife, 1764-1774, between the men of Massachusetts and the Ministry in London, primed by their active tools in Boston designated as the Junto. The services of Franklin as agent in London of the House of Representatives are named and appreciated. The book may well go among our FRANKLINIANA.

ADAMS (JOHN). Political Sketches, inscribed to His Excellency John Adams, Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States to the Court of Great Britain. By a Citizen of the United States. London: C. Dilly. MDCCLXXXVII. Title; Dedication 2 leaves, dated 'Middle Temple, April 1787.' and text 96 pages.
Half morocco 8° (7s 6d 3036)

The author's name is not known. The Sketches are six. 1, Abbé Mably. 2, Virtue. 3, Aristocracy. 4, Extent of Territory. 5, Balance of Power. And 6, Religion. The Author in his dedication to John Adams, then the U.S. Minister in London, says that they were written in 1784 and 1785, immediately after the Abbé Mably's Remarks. The present copy has some valuable manuscript notes and corrections. The Sketches are well written from a truly American point of view as to democracy and aristocracy.

ADAMS (JOHN). Correspondence of the Late President Adams. Originally published in the Boston Patriot. In a Series of Letters. Number 1 [-10]. Boston: Everett and Munroe. 1809. iv and 572 pp. half morocco uncut. A few leaves slightly defective 8° (12*s 6d* 3043)

These important letters, 63 in number, first appeared in the Boston Patriot between the 9th of May, 1809, and the 8th of Feb. 1810, and were collected and issued in this octavo form by the Publishers of that paper, in ten Numbers or Parts. They purport to contain a history of the "negotiations, conducted principally by himself [Mr Adams], which terminated in the Acknowledgment of our Independence by Great Britain and the other leading powers of Europe," but really of a bogus project set on foot by the Courts of Russia and Austria through Vergennes to mediate between Great Britain and the rebel Colonies. After Mr Adams' letters to Vergennes the project seems to have been quashed. Mr Adams was of opinion that neither Franklin nor Jay knew anything about this great secret, but it is believed that Franklin in concert with Vergennes was fully apprised of the whole affair, and was trying to test the powers and opinions of the new plenipotentiary from the States to the several powers of Europe outside of France. This attempt had nothing to do with the real negotiations begun by Oswald on the part of Great Britain with France and the Commissioners Franklin, Adams, and Jay. The greater part of these 63 letters is made up of contemporary letters written in 1780-82. All this defence is from the Adams point of view, vindicating his own life and character prior to his Administration as the Second President of the United States. The volume also contains the Ex-President's defence of his Administration against the charges of Alexander Hamilton. It is seldom that the whole ten parts are found complete.

American Independence. By John Quincy Adams. Boston: Benjamin Edes & Son, M,DCC,XCIII. 21 pages, half morocco 8° (4*s* 6*d* 3046)

ADAMS (JOHN [QUINCY]). An Answer to Pain's Rights of Man. By John Adams, Esq. Dublin: Byrne, Moore & Jones. 1793. 48 pp. half morocco 8° (5*s* 3047)
The name of the author, John Adams, on the title, is an error for his son John Quincy Adams. The letters first appeared in the 'Columbian Sentinel,' and afterwards in other American newspapers. They are here republished 'and recommended to the serious attention of those who, with Mr. Pain and others, think Revolutions in Government so easily effected.' The book consists of seven letters.

ADAMS (JOHN QUINCY). An Inaugural Oration, delivered at the Author's installation as Boylston Professor of Rhetorick and Oratory, at Harvard University, in Cambridge, Massachusetts. On Thursday, 12 June, 1806. By John Quincy Adams. Boston: At the Anthology Office, By Munroe & Francis. 1806.
The seed sown in this early Oration produced a never ending crop of criticism against the learning, scholarship, and sentiments of that Harvard Professor who afterwards became the sixth President of the United States.

By WILLIAM COLEMAN, 1766-1829, law partner of Aaron Burr, and subsequently reporter of the Supreme Court of New York to 1800; a staunch federalist, and for many years the editor of the Evening Post. This criticism of the Professor of Rhetoric and Senator in Congress for Massachusetts is rich, racy, and severe, both as to his language and his politics. But the real historical value now of the production lies in the discussion of the facts, principles, opinions, and details of the then approaching war of 1812, such as the neutral rights, right of search, free ships and free goods, the Berlin and Milan Decrees, the Chesapeake, &c.

ADAMS (JOHN QUINCY). Remarks on the Hon. John Q. Adams's Review of Mr. Ames's Works, with some strictures on the views of the author. Boston: T. B. Wait and Co. 1809.
50 pages half morocco uncut 8° (5s 6d 3059)
FISHER AMES, of Massachusetts, died in 1808, and in the following year some of his friends, partly for the benefit of his family, which had been left ill-provided for, collected and published his Works in one volume. There soon after appeared in the Boston Patriot, it is believed, several articles containing a severe criticism of the efforts of the friends of the deceased statesman, orator, and politician, as well as of the character and achievements of Ames himself. These articles came out anonymously in pamphlet form under the title 'American Principles; a review of the works of Fisher Ames,' and soon after were attributed to the pen of the Professor of Rhetoric in Harvard College, John Q. Adams. The Professor was appointed American Minister to Russia, and within a fortnight after he sailed David Everett, the editor of the Patriot, acknowledged that Mr Adams was the author of the offensive review, and made it a subject of praise. Mr John Lowell, of Boston, was the author of these Remarks, which are as severe as political rancour and party prejudice could make them.

Some copies have a four-page Appendix, pp. 97-100.

ADAMS (JOHN QUINCY). Notice of Mr. Adams' Eulogium on the Life and Character of James Monroe. n. p. n. d. [Washington, 1832.] 36 pages half morocco uncut 8° (5s 6d 3069)
This is a very elaborate and severe historical criticism upon the Sixth President's Eulogy on the Fifth President's Life, delivered at Boston, 25 Aug. 1831. Mr Adams's Eulogy was biographical, political and historical. This Author challenges very many statements, and brings forward an infinite number of proofs, in text and notes, so that, with due sifting, the book becomes of considerable historical and bibliographical importance in the materials for the history of the war of 1812, in events leading up to and following it.

ADDRESS (The) of the People of Great-Britain to the Inhabitants of America. London: T. Cadell, MDCCLXXV. Half title, title & 60 pp. half mor. 8° (7*s* 6*d* 3106)

With the autograph of Bartholomew Kneeland, publisher of Boston, on the title-page, and in the same hand 'By Sir John Dalrymple.' On the top of the last page is the autograph of 'John Holbrook Junr from W. Kneeland.' Sir John Dalrymple, 1726-1810, was a Baron of the Scoteh Exchequer and a writer of some repute, with a fluent but muddy and vendible pen. 'An honest fellow,' said Dr Johnson, 'for he tells equally what makes against both sides. But nothing can be poorer than his mode of writing. It is the mere bouncing of a school-boy.' The Monthly Review at the time intimated that the Address was written, printed, and distributed in America at the public expense, 'where the greatest part of a large impression has been sent apparently to co-operate with a late conciliatory resolution of the House of Commons.' If this be true, it is a remarkable instance of the frailty of royal and ministerial judgment, because the affectation of paternal tenderness for the Americans, the prodigal assumptions of British superiority and home authority over the distant Colonies, the misguided statements and misapplied information, were all calculated to arouse the resentment of the Americans rather than appease their growing animosity. The platitudes of fatherly advice based on paternal ignorance and homespun infatuation are amusing when read in the light of history. The author speaks first on the project of warlike opposition of the Colonies, and says (p. 3), 'No people situated as you are, can hope for success in war, unless they are possessed of four things before they engage in it: viz. fortified towns, a disciplined army, a navy, and a great annual revenue. You have none of these, while we have them all. Do you trust to foreign aids? Will the despotism of France establish a new empire of Liberty?' Indeed the whole book, written to order, is like many other things 'made to sell.' The declaratory and vindictive acts of parliament, the petitions and complaints of the Colonies, and all the facts on both sides, are a jumble of plausible but indiscreet political wire-pulling. The Colonists were Englishmen who carried over the water English rights and liberties, and felt themselves able to enjoy and willing to defend them on the new soil. History tells how they did it, while this book tells how they couldn't do it.

ADDRESS (An) to the Cocoa-Tree. From a Whig. London: George Kearsly, MDCCLXII. Title and 21 pages half morocco 4° (7*s* 6*d* 3111)

This honest Whig vindicates the late Administration of Pitt in a letter to the Cocoa-Tree Club, and satirizes that of his successor from the North, the Earl of Bute. It is true Martinique was conquered in Bute's Administration, but the conquest had been planned by Pitt. The loss and recovery of Newfoundland, and the Conquest of the Havannah are explained, &c.

To which is added, An Appendix, containing A Letter from Mr Keene to the South-Sea Company, after He had receiv'd the King of Spain's Declaration, and actually sign'd the Convention, with some Observations upon it. London: H. Goreham, 1739. iv. and 63 pages, Appendix 4 pages, half mor. 8° (10*s* 6*d* 3113)

By Benjamin Robins (1707-1751), celebrated writer and mathematician, author of 'The Convention with Spain,' and afterwards employed to rewrite M^r^ Chaplain Walter's account of Anson's Voyage round the World. The object of this well written tract is the defence of 'many Gentlemen of great distinction . . . infamously abus'd by Ministerial Authority' in regard to the transactions and negotiations with Spain, 1729-1739, relative mainly to the British trade and navigation in America and the West Indies. The pretended dominion of Spain in the Seas of America by right of the Papal donation of 1493, and the corruptions and dodges of the Ministry are severely handled. The book is a necessity in a collection of historical materials relating to the prosperous British man-trade in Negroes for America.

ADDRESS (The) to the Great Man: with Advice to the Public. London: J. Robinson, 1758. 54 pages, half morocco 8° (10*s* 6*d* 3114)

The Great Man was, of course, William Pitt, afterwards

Earl of Chatham, who after having been some nine years paymaster-general of the Army resigned that post in 1755, at the beginning of the Old French War in America, and was made for the second time Secretary of State and virtual Prime Minister the 30th June, 1757. Meanwhile everything had gone wrong, and the enemy were gaining ground. The Minorca business and the official murder of Byng; the appointment of Braddock, who, 'tho' no Coward, as ill-qualified for his Employment as any in the Service: brought up on the powdered Parade of St. James, and used to Windsor-Marches and Palace Guards, he was little instructed how to deal with the viewless Savage;' his defeat; the not bestowing rank on the Colonial Forces; the failures of the other Expeditions of 1755, 1756, and the plans of 1757; the new method of prosecuting the American War; the dispersion of the Acadians; the several military disgraces, to be imputed to national corruption; the failures of Johnson, Shirley, Loudon, Amherst and Abercrombie, all are incidentally alluded to in this important tract. The task of the tried, honest and great man is to arouse and purify the Public Spirit. Pitt did this by a renovation of Martial Virtue and Public Spirit, at the same time employing and rewarding Genius. Wolfe under the appointment and instruction of the Great Man settled the business.

ADDRESS (An) to the Inhabitants of Pennſylvania, by Thoſe Freemen, of the City of Philadelphia, who are now confined in the Mason's Lodge, by virtue of A General Warrant. Signed in Council by the Vice-President of the Council of Pennsylvania. Philadelphia: Robert Bell. MDCCLXXVII. Title and Motto from Montesquieu, 2 leaves, the reverse of each blank, and 52 pages, soiled copy and somewhat wormed, half morocco uncut 8° (10s 6d 3117)

This sad tale of Quaker persecution in Philadelphia in August and September, 1777, just after the receipt of the news that the British Army had landed in Maryland and was making for that city, is hardly surpassed in halting justice by anything that occurred in New England the previous century. On the recommendation of Congress, 28 Aug. to secure all persons suspected of being inimical to the cause of America, the Council of Philadelphia on the 31st, resolved that such dangerous persons as the following eleven prominent citizens, viz. Joshua Fisher, Abel James, James, John and Israel Pemberton, Henry Drinker, Samuel Pleasant, Thomas Wharton, Sr Thomas and Samuel Fisher (sons of Joshua) and John James should be secured, together with 30 others named, and locked up 'in some convenient place, under a guard, with which the Town Major, Colonel Nico a, will supply you.' Then follows a list of 25 citizens, good men and true (of whom William Bradford was the first and Thomas Bradford the last named) who were appointed to make the arrests. Certain persons whose names in the lists were marked † were to be permitted to remain in their own dwelling-houses on giving written promises to keep within their doors and 'refrain from doing anything injurious to the United Free States of North America, by speaking, writing, or otherwise, and from giving intelligence to the Commander-in-Chief of the British forces, or any other person whatever, concerning public affairs.' Of course the accused declined to promise, and declared their innocence, and demanded to know of what they were accused, and to have a trial before the Congress or the Council. They were all with others locked up in the Free-Masons' Lodge, where they remonstrated most forcibly to both the Congress and the Council, with no other effect than that their imprisonment was to be changed to banishment to Stanton, in the West part of Virginia. On further remonstrance and protest, but without charge or trial, they were to take the usual oath of allegiance or sign the following, "I do swear (or affirm) that I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as a Free and Independent State." They declined to take this oath without trial. "You have first deprived us of our liberty, on one pretence, which finding you are not able to justify, you wave, and require as a condition of our enlargement that we should confess ourselves men of suspicious character." Banishment was again decreed by the Council.

ADDRESS (An) to the Interior Cabinet. (Signed at end) 'An Independent Whig.' London. J. Debrett (Successor to Mr. Almon). 1782.

43 pages half morocco 4º (21*s* 3118)

This sarcastically witty and gossiping revelation of the workings of the 'Interior Cabinet' from the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle to the end of the American War is both amusing and instructive. This 'Interior Cabinet' was the wheel within the wheel during all that time, and Charles Jenkinson (1727-1808), afterwards Earl of Liverpool, is pictured as the chief wire-puller. It was this Cabinet that reduced the British Empire according to act of parliament, by lopping off the American Colonies. The book goes on to tell how this was done. 'Mr. Jenkinson was the first instrument in this efficient business. He gained his information of the Colonies from a certain naval officer, who came from Boston, because he could not stay there: and whom he afterwards made a consul abroad; partly for reward, and partly to send him out of the way. From this man's malicious and false representation of the people of America, the Interior Cabinet received their first impressions, and formed their first ideas, of that distant, but great and invaluable country. From the same source, Mr. Jenkinson drew his Regulations; which became the rubric of the Cabinet; and laid the foundation of the ruin of the Empire.' The statements of facts, and the suggestions or hints as to influence of this Interior Cabinet, must be qualified by the experience and discretion of the historian, but no doubt this book hereafter will be sought as an important Nugget of American history.

ADDRESS (AN) to the Merchants of Great-Britain: or, A Review of the Conduct of the Adminiſtration, with Regard to our Trade and Navigation: Shewing How the Trading Intereſt have been impos'd upon by the Enemies of the Miniſtry: With A Juſtification of the Convention concluded between Great-Britain and Spain. By a Merchant retir'd. London: J. Roberts. [1740?] Half-title, title & 50 pp. half mor. 8° (7*s* 6*d* 3119)

A defence of the Ministry against the complaints of the Merchants that the government is doing nothing for trade and navigation in America and the West Indies, but rather truckling to, instead of going to war with Spain. The writer points out how Admiral Hosier has been ordered to watch and intercept the Flotilla from Vera Crux, the Galleons from Cartagena, Porto Bello, or the Havanna, and if too late, to follow them to the Coasts of Spain and capture them or even the Guarda Costas. He refers also to the orders given to Vice-Admiral Hopson, Sir John Jennings and Sir Charles Wager and others to take, sink, burn or otherwise destroy the King of Spain's ships. The writer also refers to the £60,000 compromise with Spain, as well as the £95,000 settlement, together with the Assiento Contract and the dealings of the South Sea Company in its important business of supplying negroes not only to our own Colonies but to Spain. All this business of such national importance is surely better than going to war with Spain for the benefit of a few greedy merchants of Great Britain. See ASSIENTO.

ADDRESS (AN) to the People of Great Britain, on the propriety of abstaining from Weſt India Sugar and Rum. The Tenth Edition, with Additions. Birmingham: Swinney & Walker, MDCCXCI. 8 pages half morocco 8° (5*s* 6*d* 3120)

The veteran spinsters of Great Britain, by simply abstaining from the use of West India rum and sugar, are every bit as powerful against the growth of Negro Slavery as an army with banners. 'The laws of our country may indeed prohibit us the sugar-cane, unless we will receive it through the medium of Slavery. They may hold it to our lips, steeped in the blood of our fellow-creatures; but they cannot compel us to accept the loathsome potion.'

ADDRESS (An) to the People of the U. States. To which is added, A Letter from the Hon. Timothy Pickering, a Senator of the United States from the State of Massachusetts, Exhibiting to His Constituents a view of the imminent danger of an unnecessary and ruinous War. Addressed to His Excellency James Sullivan, Governor of the said State. Northampton, Mass. William Butler, 1808.

16 pages half morocco. 8° (6s 6d 3124)

This spirited Federal Address is signed 'THOUSANDS,' and is an earnest protest against President Jefferson's Embargo and the political events leading to a war with Great Britain. This is supported by the long letter of Col. Pickering, Senator in Congress from Massachusetts, to Governor Sullivan of that State, setting forth the reasons, causes and history of the Embargo, which was 'not necessary to the safety of our seamen, our vessels or our merchandize.'

ADDRESS (An) to the Representatives In Parliament, upon the State of the Nation. London: J. Almon, MDCCLXXIX. 38 pages half morocco 8° (7s.6d 3125)

"It is not my intention (says this writer, p. 12) to trace the progress of the war in which we are engaged up to its first source—the discontents in America, and the blocking up of the port of Boston. I do not mean to justify America or to accuse Great Britain." The author then proceeds to overhaul the administration, to note the progress of events in America and elsewhere, and to sum up "what administration has provided since our engaging in the war, and after a perseverance in it for five years," etc.

ADDRESS (AN) to the Rev. Dr. Alison, the Rev. Mr. Ewing, and others, Trustees of the Corporation for the Relief of Preſbyterian Miniſters, their Widows and Children: Being a Vindication of the Quakers from the Aſperſions of the ſaid Trustees in their Letter publiſhed in the London Chronicle, No. 1223. To which is prefixed, the ſaid Letter. By a Lover of Truth. [Philadelphia?] Printed in the Year 1765. Half-title, title, 'A Letter' etc. concerning the Indian War, 3 pp; text 47 pp. half mor. 8° (2l. 2s. 3126)

The author of this anonymous and exceedingly valuable pamphlet is believed to be Dr BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. It bears strong internal marks of his intelligence, vigour and love of truth and fairness. Besides, he was of the time, place and circumstance, and was probably the only man who was capable of writing it, or furnishing the materials. This copy has a few explanatory manuscript contemporary notes, of considerable importance, especially the initials B.F. at the end. It has however been attributed to Joseph Galloway, who was a member of the Pennsylvania Assembly in 1764, and was at that time and subsequently a friend of Franklin. It is possible that they both had a hand in the good work. The letter from Philadelphia was dated Aug. 22, and appeared in the London Chronicle, N° 1223, for Oct. 20-23, 1764. Dr Francis Alison, D.D. Presbyterian Minister of the first Church, was at that time vice-provost and professor of moral philosophy in the College of Philadelphia. John Ewing was another Presbyterian D.D. and pastor of the same Church, and professor and vice-provost of same College. The looseness of their facts was equalled only by their disregard of moral philosophy in narrating anything about the Quakers of Pennsylvania on such insufficient evidence.

If this amusing book was not used in the American War it ought to have been. It gives instructions and advice, in a seriously comical vein, to the officers of the Army, from the Commander in Chief to the Drum Major, under all circumstances that they are likely to encounter. The work is divided into sixteen chapters, each rank being advised separately. For instance, Chapter 11 is devoted to advice 'To Young Officers,' pp. 72-85. Here is a sample: "When on leave of absence, never come back to your time; as that might cause people to think, that you had no where to stay, or that your friends were tired of you."

ADVICE to the Officers of the British Army: With the Addition of ſome Hints to the Drummer and Private Soldier. [Mottos] The sixth edition. London: Printed by W. Richardson, for G. Kearsley, MDCCLXXXIII. Folded caricature frontis. 4 prel. leaves, (including 4 pages of Reviews of the work, by various magazines), and Text 134 pages; Instruction, etc. 1 leaf, half morocco uncut 12° (10s 6d 3136)

To this sixth edition are added Chapters 17 and 18, 'To the Drummer and to the Private Soldier,' as well as four pages of notices from the Magazines of Nov. and Dec. 1782 and Jan. and Feb. 1783. But the chief addition is a copper plate frontispiece entitled 'Veluti in Speculum,' a Satyr holding a Mirror before a crowd of officers, with outline delineations of America and Port St. Philip on the wall. The last note of advice to the private soldier is: "You may be sure that, go into what quarters you will, the landlord will heartily wish you out of them. You should therefore make it a point to give him good cause for it; as it is hard a man should be hated and despised without reason."

ADVICE etc. The tenth edition. With material additions and improvements by the original author. [Mottos as before] London: Printed for G. Kearsley, by T. Daviſon, 1801. Curious folded caricature frontispiece, 'Veluti in Speculum,' 4 prel. leaves, and 155 pages half morocco uncut 8° (8s 6d 3137)

In this tenth edition the advice to the Paymaster, Chapter 10, of the previous editions, is omitted, while four new chapters are added, numbered 18, 19, 20 and 21, To the Master Gen. of the Ordnance, the Fire Master, the Engineer and to the Secretary at War. To this last one item of advice is, "Turn a deaf ear to every proposal towards improvements in the œconomy and distribution of the troops; for it is hard to tell when the work of reformation is once begun, whither it will tend to, or where it will stop:" etc. The frontispiece is the same as that of the 6th edition. This copy has the autograph of R. W. Adye, a military writer, on the title page, and apparently in the same hand underneath the engraving is a key to three of the characters, viz. 1, Lord Amherst in front; 2, Lord Dorchester with his three-cornered hat in hand; and 3, Marquis Lothian, the little man with his cane under his arm. On page 3, opposite the sentence "Ignorance of your profession is likewise best concealed by solemnity and silence, which pass for profound knowledge upon the generality of mankind," is written 'Lord D—r.'

AGUIRRE (José María). Denuncia y acusacion, que el Ciudadano Doctor José María Aguirre, Cura de la Santa Veracruz de México, Hizo del impreso titulado: Concluye el Monte Parnaso, de que resultó autor el ciudadano Rafael Dávila. [Mexico] Año de 1827. En la oficina del C. Alejandro Valdés.
32 pages half morocco uncut 4º (10*s* 6*d* 3148)
An Information and Accusation laid by Doctor Aguirre, Rector of Santa Cruz de Mexico, against Rafael Dávila, for publishing a paper which the Prosecutor qualifies as obscene, and injurious to the Clergy, and asks that the author should be indicted before the Judges. A note (p. 8), states that Dávila thereupon was arrested, and an elaborate Act of Accusation, addressed to the Judges (p. 9-31), is followed (p. 32) by a note, stating that the Defendant had been sentenced to two years' imprisonment and payment of costs. On the recto of the last leaf, at p. 31, is a spread eagle, with the motto 'E pluribus unum,' borrowed probably from a neighbouring republic.

A Defence of Dr Aguirre, by an anonymous Friend, against a variety of charges contained in a pamphlet, by Colonel Tornel, reflecting on the character of the former in his clerical and judicial capacity, as the Rector of the Church of Santa Cruz, and a Lawyer. The doctor is accused of having obtained the office of a Fiscal Prosecutor to the Inquisition by his fanaticism, of abandoning his political party and joining their opponents from interested motives, of perverting the Municipal Elections, of abusing his influence as a Spiritual Director, in order to prevail on a lady to bequeath her property of 3000 pesos to him, instead of leaving it to her nearest relations, etc. The Defence is signed: "El amigo del Dr Aguirre" (The Friend of Doctor Aguirre), and written in most abusive language.

AGUSTIN DE ITURBIDE. A project of the ceremonies to be observed at the inauguration, consecration and coronation of his majesty the Emperor Augustin I (Iturbide), presented to the Congress by the commission appointed for the purpose, on the 17th of June, 1822. Iturbide, a Mexican, bred a farmer, became a soldier, rose rapidly, took possession of Mexico, 27th Sept. 1821, in the name of the nation, and on the 18th of the following May was declared Emperor, but was soon compelled to abdicate. On the 11th of May, 1823, sailed for Leghorn, resided there and in London till he was recalled to Mexico, where he landed 14th July, 1824, and was soon after shot at Padillo.

This is a sort of handbook or guide to Rome, written by Francesco Albertini, the antiquary, native of Florence, but residing in Rome as chaplain to Julius II. The last 12 leaves are devoted to the praises of Florence, to show that his native city had something to boast of as well as the eternal city. Among other things he mentions on the recto of the last leaf, "In gloriã ingitur Floren. no-/minis affirmo in gubernatione orbis terrarum Florenti/nos aliud elementum fore. Vere prophetauit: nã in/ nouo mundo ALBERICUS VESPULSIUS Flo. miſus a fi-/deliſſimo Rege Portugal. This last chapter is dated 3rd June, 1509. This is one of the earliest references to Vespucci and his discoveries.

A very important mediæval geographical work, edited by the geographical fraternity at Vienna. In Chapter VII, in which the author discusses whether or not the land south of the Equator extends to the Southern Pole, and is inhabited, George Tanstetter Collimitius, the editor, adds a marginal note on the recto of D, to the effect that Vespucci had sailed as far south as 50°, and finding land inhabited, so described it. These geographical notions of the learned Albertus Magnus, written in the thirteenth century, were edited by George Tannstetter, at Vienna, at the suggestion of Vadianus, in 1513. In Chapter VII Albertus states his belief that the fourth part of the globe is inhabited south of the tropic of Capricorn, and that northerners may in the winter pass thither, whereas the men of that remote region do not come to us. He questions the possibility of man passing beyond the equator on account of the great heat of the equatorial regions. To this the editor, George Tanstetter, adds this marginal note, settling all doubts:—"Ecce cõcludit vltra equinoctialẽ. 50. gradibus terrã eẽ habitabilẽ, quã VESPUTIUS ſuperioribus annis ī ſuis nauigationib' fuerit & deſcripſit." A learned bibliographer has recently stated on the authority of a more learned one, that this side note in this or a previous edition 'seems to have been inserted with movable type.' The same may be said of the whole book, for the note was manifestly printed at the same time with the text in both this and the previous edition.

The author, relying on the constitutional right of every Spaniard to make publicly known any infringement of the Laws committed by the Authorities, considers it his duty to denounce the case of Dr Mier, who was sent to prison on the 30th May, 1820, since which day, and up to the date of that paper, the 18th July, 1820, he has been deprived of all intercourse, brought before no tribunal, nor informed of the cause of his arrest;—and this after having been kept three years in a dungeon of the Inquisition. On the 23rd June he stated to a visiting Magistrate the hardships of his case, and was told that he should present a written statement, but replied that being allowed no writing materials, he could not do so. The Magistrate then did so on his behalf, but the prisoner found himself still in the same cruel and helpless condition.

A Defence of the Liberty of the Press, under the Free Institutions of Mexico and a Constitutional Government, addressed to a Writer who clamours against that liberty, as dangerous to religion and society. He reminds the alarmist of the article in the new Constitution which declares that the Roman Catholic Apostolical Religion shall be that of New Spain, to the exclusion of any other, and recommends him to rely on the probity of the Government for maintaining that Law, as also to save himself the trouble of treating the public to the promised further papers on the subject of the Free Press; since, however useful such writings may have been during the past days of horrible Spanish rule, the Mexican Nation, now enjoying the happiness of having shaken off the chains of that degrading slavery, does not require his admonitions.

ALERTA, Mexicanos, que la Religion Peligra por Infames Novenarios. [Mexico.] Oficina de la testamentaría de Ontiveros, año de 1827.
4 pages half morocco 4º (4s 6d 3178)
Strictures on, and a reprint, with notes, of some lines of poetry, in honour of the Virgin, which, the anonymous writer affirms, have been composed and distributed among the Mexicans by the political parties, called Exceseses, Novenarios and Yorkinos, hostile to the clergy and religion, and to the Independence of Mexico; hypocrites, who after having done their utmost to ridicule and overthrow the religion of the country, now dedicate those devotional lines to the Virgin, in hopes thereby to ingratiate themselves with the Nation, whose pious regard for her is so well known. The paper is intended to caution the people against the deceptions of the 'novenarios.'

An insolent, scurrilous and sarcastic letter, addressed to an ecclesiastical Judge, who had excommunicated the Writer and others for conversing with another excommunicated man, with whom many Priests, friends of the Judge, some Deputies of Congress, many high military Officers and the most distinguished men converse, and whom they visit. Unless, therefore, the Judge convince them of their error, by reasoning, and not by blows and insults, they will take steps to annul the excommunication. "We are," the Writer says, "by the Grace of God, apostolic Roman Catholics, who despise fanatics and venerate the dogmas of our religion, but not the abuses committed under their shelter."

This book has been sometimes called 'ETHAN ALLEN'S BIBLE,' or the 'Vermont Bible,' and has always been spoken of with great contempt, as something quite too awfully wicked to be read or preserved. But the truth, on perusal, seems to be, that it is really a very harmless work, neither learned nor stupid. It is not of the Tom Paine order of demolition, nor is it a work, as has often been charged, in direct opposition to the Christian Religion any more than the Unitarian writings of Dr Channing or Theodore Parker. It was not expected by the 'Sacred Order of Men' in 1784 that any good could come out of Bennington, or anywhere else in New England save Harvard or Yale. As but few copies of the Oracles ever saw the light, it follows that but few readers ever had the opportunity to form a correct judgment of the contents of the book. Old Ethan in this achievement as at Ticonderoga was out at sunrise, perhaps too early for Cambridge or Connecticut, but the times have long since overtaken and distanced him. The book is not a godless, impious or immoral one, as is generally supposed, but is a sort of rough up-country platform for infant Unitarianism, if that sliding ecclesiastical doctrine admits of any platform. Produced now by any Brain Club of Boston, with a little city polish, it would soon find its level as a bit of innocent pedantry, or strong-minded religious assertion. The subject of the Oracles was at the time somewhat new, and coming forth after Edwards on the Will and other New England inspired books, to say nothing of its having been printed up in the woods of Vermont at Bennington, where John Stark reversed Burgoyne's Baum, and bearing, as author, the well-known name of the recognized leader of the Green Mountain Boys not yet admitted into the Union, though nearly ten years after the capture of Ticonderoga on the authority of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress, the book naturally drew attention, and was unfortunately as well as unjustly condemned at once, without benefit of clergy. Still it must ever be regarded by collectors of the curious as one of the most remarkable of American Books, everything considered.

Ethan Allen was a rough diamond, a man of immense energy and noble impulses; vain of his achievements and mental powers, but of little early education. Yet among all his aspirations and high aims his ambition of literary eminence took the lead. He was the author of several political tracts and Vermont books, all of which are good, free, strong, sensible and convincing; in their day answering all their aims, for they were patriotic and inspired by the author's love of his Green Mountain home and his Boys. But the Oracles, his Magnum Opus, is said to have been suggested by a certain roving Englishman named Thomas Young, a man of some scholarship and a good friend of Vermont, who in some way helped Allen to the matter, partly from plagiarism from Blount's Oracles of Reason, and partly from Young's own Original Sin. Allen worked the book up and became responsible to Haswell and Russell of Bennington for printing it. It fell dead from the press, partly it is said because of a fire in the printing office, but more likely because there were no purchasers. It however survived long enough to receive a bad name. It was lampooned by the country newspapers and parsons of the time especially in the western parts of Massachusetts and Connecticut. Allen does not appear to have been very well defined in his religious opinions. He believed in God, one and indivisible, and did not go in for the Trinity. He acknowledged the authenticity of the Old Scriptures and part of the New, and believed in a future state of rewards and punishments. He went in for the freedom of the will and thought, but denied Original Sin and Election. All these notions can with considerable pains be evolved from his Oracles or 'Bible,' but it is difficult sometimes to define what he is driving at. However, great antipathy was very early raised against the book, and Allen is said, as long as he lived, to have had it thrust back into his teeth, especially by the clergy. Many anecdotes, squibs and jibes are repeated to this day respecting him and his book, one of which is, that on being recognized in the church of the celebrated preacher Hutchinson of Woodstock, the parson gave out the following for singing:

"Let all the heathen writers join
To form one perfect book;
But Lord, when once compared with thine,
How mean their writings look."

Allen had two brothers, almost as rough, ingenuous and enterprising as himself. They three were sometimes profanely styled after the Oracles were out, the 'Vermont trinity of devils.' One was Ira Allen the first Secretary of State, the first surveyor-general and the first historian of Vermont; and the third brother was Levi. My notebook contains the following cutting from an old Boston newspaper:

'Old Ethan once said with significant nod,
Though I hold not with Jesus I know there's a God:
There's a devil also: you'l see him some day,
In a whirlwind of fire take Levi away.

There General you're wrong, quoth Ira, I sware,
For Levi's too strong for the Prince of the air;
And if ever you see them engage in a fray,
'Tis Levi will carry the devil away.

Faith, replied Levi, you're very severe,
And seem much inclined to banter and jeer;
Though over the globe my name stands enrol'd
For tricks of all sorts, sly, ingenious and bold,

Yet I've one consolation, that none can deny,— There's one greater rogue in Vermont than I.
Who's that? they both cried with equal surprise,
'Tis Ira, by gee, I yield him the prize.

Old Ethan is dead, Honor wept o'er his bier;
Though ragged his soul, yet his heart was sincere:
Where's Levi and Ira? and how do they fare?
That's the Devil's look out, and his greatest care.'

In the fall of 1775 General Allen was taken prisoner at Montreal and sent to England. He was handcuffed and fettered and otherwise harshly treated on his passage, but he showed Iroquois indifference to all cruelty and malice, provoking his keepers by his strength, determination and courage. In Pendennis Castle near Falmouth he used to astonish the natives by breaking down ten-penny nails in his teeth. After a time spent in England, Halifax and New York as prisoner, he became quite tame, and in doing good to his fellow prisoners elicited the admiration and friendship of all who knew him. Exchanged for Col. Campbell in May 1778 he returned to the Green Mountains, where he was cordially welcomed. Though he went no more into the Continental Army, yet with the countenance of Washington he, with other Green Mountain Boys, played a most important part in staying and keeping back the British forces under Carleton and Hal[d]man, who threatened incursions upon New York throu[gh] Vermont. This story is not yet so fully written as the C[ar]ton papers in the Royal Institution, and the Haldiman pap[ers] in the British Museum will enable the future biographer Allen to write. Some day, therefore, Ethan Allen's sun m[ay] be expected to rise again, but nothing will ever dispel t[he] jolly lampoons and pasquinades that are in print respec[ting] him and his Oracles. Among these the following extr[a]vagant one by Dr Lemuel Hopkins of Hartford is perha[ps] best. It is from the collection of American Poems publish[ed] Litchfield Con. in 1793 (see N° 3277), and is given here ent[ire]

'Lo Allen 'scaped from British jails,
His tushes broke by biting nails,
Appears in hyperborean skies,
To tell the world the bible lies.
See him on green hills north afar,
Glow like a self-enkindled star,
Prepared (with mob-collecting club
Black from the forge of Belzebub,
And grim with metaphysic scowl,
With quill just pluck'd from wing of owl)
As rage or reason rise or sink
To shed his blood, or shed his ink.
Behold inspired from Vermont dens,
The seer of Antichrist descends,
To feed new mobs with Hell-born manna
In Gentile lands of Susquehanna:
And teach the Pennsylvania quaker
High blasphemies against his maker.
Behold him move ye staunch divines!
His tall head bristling through the pines;
All front he seems like wall of brass,
And brays tremendous as an ass;
One hand is clench'd to batter noses,
While t'other scrawls 'gainst Paul and Moses.'

A criminal accusation against the Mexican Minister of State, Teran, presented to the Chamber of Deputies, by Señor Alpuche, dated Mexico, 2nd May 1824, and charging Teran with treachery, overthrow of the Congress of Tehuacan, surrender of the Hill of Colorado, and many other acts of perfidy and tyranny; as also, ordering Alpuche to be arrested on a false accusation, in order to prevent the latter from attending the Congress, for which infraction of the law the Commander Hernandez, who executed the order, is made equally responsible, and for all of which the accuser asks that the offenders should be tried by a Jury of the Chambers and receive punishment, according to the laws of the Nation.

The first of a Series of Philippics which the author, D. José Maria Alpuche é Infante, addressed, "on the 14th day of the month of the defuncts of the year of our Lord 1838, to the Head of the Government, from the dungeon N° 67 of the Convent of Santo Domingo de Méjico", where he was imprisoned for an alleged infringement of the Law of the Press. The document consists chiefly of technicalities of those Laws and invectives of a political character.

A conversation between two friends; the one complaining of the Congress, which had just prorogued its sittings, having done nothing for the good of the Nation, the other disagreeing and mentioning several important Laws that had been passed. After a prolonged discussion, they both agree that no work of consequence had been accomplished, the Censurer of the Chambers quoting a remark of Montesquieu, on the following occasion. A dispute having arisen as to whether certain names of landed property should be spelled with a C or K, the matter was referred to the University of France, which, after years of contention, could come to no decision. "The University," remarked Montesquieu, "has been quibbling 900 years, and is still dreaming."

ALVAREZ (Francisco de Paula). Al Ex-Brigadier Antonio Lopez de Santana. El Ciudadano Francisco de Paula Alvarez. México: [1822.] Imprenta Imperial del Sr. D. Alejandro Valdés.

11 pages half morocco uncut 4° (5s 6d 3239)

A Letter to the Ex-Brigadier Santana, dated Decbr 1822, from F. de P. Alvarez, informing him that he had received, among his official papers, a letter, addressed by him to General Iturbide, and intended for "the Emperor," which he had opened, and informed his Majesty of its contents, who received it as the strong man receives the insults of the feeble, pitying his fury, which is sheer delirium. His Majesty wished to reply, but he (Alvarez) thought it beneath the dignity of the Chief Magistrate and an affront to the Nation, over which he rules, to do so, and asked and obtained permission to answer, which he now does. Alvarez then proceeds to review Santana's whole political career, and charges him, in the most abusive language, with almost every military and political crime a man can be guilty of; calls him a low, selfish, vain and ignorant intriguer; an ignoramus, so devoid of all education, that he, most probably, did not understand the letter, written by another for, and signed, by him; a traitor, perjurer, thief, etc. etc. Alvarez offers not only to prove every one of his accusations, but to supplement them with others, on the same condition.

A Memorial, addressed by Colonel Alvarez to the Supreme Tribunal of War of Mexico, in refutation of the malicious calumnies charged against him by Captn Marchena, demanding the severe punishment of his accuser. The Colonel is charged with mercenary and treasonable proceedings whilst holding the office of Republican Governor of the Port of Acapulco, and with playing into the hands of the Spanish Monarchy. He accompanies his defence with 30 Testimonials in his favour, at the end of the Memorial.

The author of a paper: "El amante de la Constitucion" (the friend of the Constitution), having been attacked by another, entitled: "Contra el amigo de la Constitucion" (against the friend of the Constitution), this pamphlet is intended to vindicate the former, the author of which, as well as his defender, being both Spaniards, adherents of the Monarchy of Ferdinand VII, and the anonymous Writer of this pamphlet evidently a Priest.

AMANTE (EL) de la Constitucion. Contra el Papel titulado el Amante de la Constitucion. Méjico julio 7 de 1820. [Signed] F. R. [Mexico] En la oficina de D. Alejandro Valdes [1820].

This paper is directed against a print, called: "El amante de la Constitucion" (The Friend of the Constitution), in which it is asserted that Ferdinand VII recovered his liberty through the valour of the Spanish arms, and not through the lying prayers of monks. The censurer of those words denounces them as impious and scandalous, opposed to the irrefragable evidence of the Scriptures of the efficacy of prayer, which alone is sufficient to give the victory to armies. To affirm that the bravery of the Spanish Army, and not the prayers of the Clergy, saved Spain and Ferdinand from the power of Napoleon, is blasphemy which the Constitution condemns and against which the Board of Censure is bound to protect the Liberty of the Press, constantly disgraced by abuse of this kind.

AMERICAN ALARM,/ (THE/) or the/ Bostonian Plea,/ For the Rights, and Liberties, of the/ People./ Humbly Addreſſed to the King and Council,/ and/ To the Conſtitutional Sons of Liberty, in/ America./ By the/ British Bostonian./ [John Allen] Boston:/ Printed and Sold by D. This 'British Bostonian' is said to be 'one John Allen.' He was the author of several other works, all of which are intensely American, and very rare. The present volume is in four parts, viz. 1, 'An Address to the Gentlemen of the Provinces of America,' pp. 5-35, on the rights of the people and of the King or guardian of their rights. 'Your Governor [Hutchinson] should be your Servant, and not the Ministry's Slave—for my part I always think that Kings and Governors, are by the law of God and nature the people's servants, to be made and unmade by them and answerable only to them.' 2, 'To the King's most excellent Majesty,' pp. 1-8, representing in plain words that 'Princes are made for the People, and not the people for them'; that the Americans are true and have not their rights, being aggrieved and denied their rights as a people, their rights as British subjects and their charter rights. 3, 'To his Excellency the Governor [Hutchinson] of the Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay,' pp. 1-9; criticising him severely, and asking among other things 'Has not the parliament of America, by virtue of being the representatives of the people, the same right and power to make laws, and lay these laws before the King, for him to sign and confirm—or to disprove the same, as the British Parliament has?' 4, 'To the honourable the People's Council, and Houſe of Representatives, of the Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay,' pp. 1-16, complimenting them on their love of liberty, and censuring them for exercising the same oppressions they fled from. Each of these four parts is signed 'A British Bostonian.'

AMERICAN ANNUAL REGISTER (THE), or, Historical Memoirs of the United States, for the year 1796. [By James Thomson Callender] Philadelphia:

Bioren & Madan. January 19th, 1797. vii and 288 pages half morocco uncut 8° (8*s* 6*d* 3259)

Mr Callender, the author of this lively work, was the editor of The Recorder at Richmond, Virginia, where he died in 1803. His writings are strongly partizan, personal, gossipy, and very interesting, but hardly to be relied upon as true history or biography. At one time he attacked bitterly Washington, Adams, Hamilton and many prominent Federals, and then wrote up Jefferson, receiving from him from time to time many little stipends of encouragement. At another time he attacked Jefferson, and Jefferson told in his letters of the stipends. This Annual Register for the year 1796 is full of historical, political, and personal matters of interest, with much bibliographical scandal about the writers of the day, the government, and the Congress.

AMERICAN APOLLO (THE), No. 1 [—39]—Part II. —Vol. I. Containing Essays, Moral, Political and Poetical, and the daily Occurrences in the Natural Civil and Commercial World. Boston, 1792. Vol I Numbers 1-39 in 416 pages 8° (2*l* 2*s* 3260)

This is a complete set, we believe, of the AMERICAN APOLLO, which has long been a puzzle to the American bibliographer. It is a work of importance, and, though never finished in this shape, deserves to be better known. It was issued by the printers, Messrs Joseph Belknap and Alexander Young, the first N° dated the 6th of Jan. and N° 39 the 28th of Sept. 1792. It came out every Friday in numbers of 8 or 12 pages each, except N° 38, which has only 4 pages. It is called Part II, Vol I, because it was issued in conjunction with a few pages weekly of the Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, termed Part I, Vol I. The Collections ran to 208 pages of the first vol before the separation. Joseph was the son of the Rev. Dr Jeremy Belknap the historian, and Alexander was the father of the Rev. Dr Alexr Young of Boston. Numbers 1 to 19 were printed by this firm, the partnership of which was dissolved 16th May, 1792; N° 20 was printed by Joseph Belknap, and N°s 21-39 by Messrs Belknap and Samuel Hall. N° 39 was the last that appeared in octavo form. After that the Apollo was enlarged to a newspaper, and continued till the 25th Dec. 1794, while the Historical Society Collections were issued in numbers or parts separately to the end of Vol V. The Collections have gone on to this day, while this gossiping twin companion of Volume I has been lost sight of and become wellnigh forgotten. The first dozen numbers of this joint publication were issued in coloured wrappers, after that in white ones. No title page of The Apollo was ever issued, nor was there any preface, index or explanation. With this volume is only one of the Covers, that to N° 30, for Friday, July 27, 1792, Vol I. The Title given is 'The/ American Apollo,/ Containing the Publications of the Historical Society,/ Essays, Moral, Political, and Poetical, and the/ Daily Occurrences in the Natural, Civil,/ and Commercial World./ [Woodcut Vignette, Apollo with his lyre and other fixtures] Printed at Boston,/ By Belknap and Hall,/ State Street.'/

The other 3 pages of the cover are filled with advertisements, mostly of books. In the first number is this editorial paragraph: "We are happy in presenting the public with the APOLLO, from the first complete Printing-Press ever made in this town—the wood-work was made by Mr. Berry, and the iron-work by Mr. McClench, it is well executed in every part, and does honor to the ingenious constructors."

AMERICAN ARGUMENTS for British Rights; being a republication of The Celebrated Letters of Phocion, on the subject of Neutral Trade. [By William L. Smith of South Carolina]. Printed at Charlestown, South Carolina; Reprinted for J. Butterworth, London, 1806. xii and 74 pp. half morocco 8° (6s 6d 3262)

William Loughton Smith, LL.D. of South Carolina, first published these 27 letters in the Charleston Courier early in 1806, over the Signature PHOCION. As Alexander Hamilton occasionally used the same pseudonym, they have sometimes been incorrectly attributed to him. Mr Smith was a Member of the first five Congresses, supporting Washington's and Adams's Administrations, 1789-1797, then U.S.

Minister to Spain, and afterwards to Portugal to 1801. He opposed Jefferson and his policy of dealing with the European Powers in regard to neutral flags and trade. These letters were collected and reprinted in Charleston and extensively circulated. This English edition has a long preface by the English editor, explaining and vindicating Smith's arguments as good English law. This edition omits the first four and part of the fifth letter as not relating to Colonial trade, and some other passages relating to interior politics and party disputes. But on the great subject of Neutral Trade these omissions are compensated for by the able preface. At the end is an Appendix, containing the 'Case of the William,' British Prize Court, Privy Council, March 12, 1806, pp. 69-74

AMERICAN CANDOUR, in a tract lately published at Boston, entitled an Analysis of the late Correspondence between our Administration and Great Britain and France. With an attempt to shew what are the Real Causes of the Failure of the Negociation. Printed at Boston by Russell and Cutler; Re-printed London: J. M. Richardson, 1809. Title and advertisement 2 leaves and text 106 pages half morocco 8° (6s 6d 3263)

The first part, to page 70, of this tract is by John Lowell of Boston, entitled ANALYSIS, &c. [see N° 3312]. Following the title is an Advertisement dated London, 10th June, 1809, in which the editor remarks that this reprint 'Cannot fail to be highly interesting to the English Nation. Mr. Canning's Instructions to Mr. Erskine, and the Correspondence between the latter and Mr. Smith, are added in an Appendix.' On page 71 begins the second tract with this half-title: 'Further and still more important Suppressed Documents.' After acknowledging the right of every government to keep secret its negotiations, the editor adds in his preface: 'It will be perceived by the Documents which we are now about to publish, the authenticity of which may be relied on, and which we challenge Mr. Madison to disavow if he dare,' etc. The Appendix begins on page 97.
